

Microsoft Teams Rollout

As recently communicated, we are in progress of moving to Microsoft Teams, which will be our official communication and collaboration platform.

Considering the current situation, we encourage you to get familiar with our new tool as soon as possible, if you haven't had the chance already. It can improve the way of working from home.

As you already heard Skype for Business is being decommissioned which means that at some point the software will disappear from your PC and Microsoft Teams will be the way to stay in touch with your teams and people you work with.

You can find here all essential information about how to use Microsoft Teams.

You can find the training also on our e-learning platform in the IT section

We will also be organising a meeting for anyone who would like to join, learn more and have an answer on any question that may appear in the meantime.

Thank you for your cooperation.
