

A close-up photograph of a person's hand and forearm resting on a white surface. The hand is positioned on the left side of the frame, with fingers slightly spread. The forearm extends towards the right. A thick, vibrant yellow paint is applied to the skin, starting from the wrist and extending up the forearm. The paint has a textured, brush-stroke appearance. The background is a plain, light-colored surface, possibly a table or wall. The overall lighting is bright and even.

Challenging the status quo. You can't lead from the middle of the crowd. You have to think ahead, be creative and just a little disruptive. We must make bold decisions that not only lead the industry but drive it.
