

Winsor & Newton launches “community hub”

A place for artists and creatives to share, learn and be inspired.

This month the new Winsor & Newton community hub went live. It's full of engaging artist-led content and is part of the ongoing effort to build a stronger emotional connection with our audience.

The community hub is designed for artists to learn from other creatives and be inspired by our ever-growing community-based content. It showcases our wide range of artist interviews, residencies, and partnerships. Many more content will be shared in the coming months.

We encourage you to check out some of the content. A few examples are:

- The interview with the street art duo TelmoMiel.
- The article about the manga artist Chie Kutswada.
- A video from Jenny Morgan's residency at the Studio Building in London.
- Or our recent ‘The Moment When...’ watercolour campaign that documents three artists on location in their studios.

Winsor & Newton Collaborations

You can also find more information on exciting partnerships past and present, such as our current collaboration with the Thyssen-Bornemisza National Museum Madrid on their retrospective of Georgia O'Keeffe

This is just the beginning, and we have lots of exciting community projects to come. This was all possible due to a great collaboration between the Winsor & Newton Brand Team and Digital Team.
